INTRODUCTION

Askin Ranch, which has been under the same family ownership for over 50 years, is conveniently located only eight minutes from Livingston and approximately 25 minutes from Bozeman. Previously a horse ranch, the 176 acres offer numerous opportunities for a new owner. Historically, the property served as an equine facility for breeding and raising quarter horses and thoroughbreds for racing. Billman Creek traverses the ranch, offering a productive small fishery with numerous cutthroats and brown trout. As a tributary to the Yellowstone River, the creek provides a lovely riparian area, water rights for irrigation, and stock water rights for livestock. An older yet charming home is situated on the property, with several ideal building sites available for your dream home. Additionally, there is a well-maintained 36 by 100 barn, shop, bunkhouse, and storage shed. The ranch sits in a basin setting, offering breathtaking views, abundant wildlife, fenced pastures, and irrigated meadows. The facilities are nestled among many large golden willow trees, providing shade and protection. Alternatively, one might also choose to build their own home on one of the numerous other homesites and enjoy this splendid property privately. Surrounded by the Absaroka, Bridger, and Crazy Mountains, the views are endless.
