INTRODUCTION

Location, zoning, character, history - this desirable property on Livingstons SW side has tremendous potential for commercial or residential use. Given the history of the city's early growth and its design, the stately brick building was originally built as a lavish home during the westward residential expansion of the early 1900s. Beautiful wood floors, attractive interior trim, covered front porch, stained glass windows and other amenities lend to the appealing nature from days gone by. In more recent times the well kept building was used as a professional office space, and most recently as a residential duplex. The main level has a bedroom, office space, full bath, kitchen, bathroom and spacious living room area. The upper level has 2 beds and a full bath. There is a shared garage, with a one car stall available for this property. Located on the corner of 7th and Park Streets, current zoning allows for a wide range of commercial or residential uses as specified in current city code. It could also be used as a single family home. Bring your ideas and benefit from the potential this property has to offer.
